Dear The Browser Company,

I am incredibly excited to be applying for the job shadow opportunity at The Browser Company. I've always had a passion for investment, and the opportunity to combine that passion with my passion for cs excites me.

I am a current UCF Computer Science student and have experience with full stack web development, having had my first internship at Amazon working on a full stack react app. I've spent much of my free time working on different projects to expand and hone my skillset and learn as many different technologies as possible.

Some of my projects include:

- A homework submission system for programming assignments, where fellow students could write, test, and submit their code for our computer science class
- Stories feature for Google Meets which interfaced with Google's GAPI to host and display photos or videos of the user's choice
- A website that pulls random images from WikiHow and has users attempt to guess the corresponding article's name
- A PWA based mobile app for creating custom buttons to preform actions on the user's computer.

I also have experience in many relevant technologies I believe are perfect for this position; including Python, JavaScript, SQL, R, MATLAB, and XML.

I am confident that my skills would be a great fit for The Browser Company and I look am excited for the opportunity to apply for this position. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Thank you,
Matthew Sand
